Elden Ring character classes:

The Vancian Knight specializes in sword wielding and riding, has both physical and magical defenses, and is the evolution of a knight class originating in the medieval era. The Dawn Walker uses a bow, and is the weapon specialist specializing in directly attacking the source of magical power. She protects the innocent from evil with conviction, but her growing sense of destiny has driven her insane. It is rare to see her fully use her bow. The Tranquil Knight wields a sword and shield, but unlike the other classes, his special ability is the ability to read the mental orders of others, enabling him to predict their actions. He is calm and collected, but can transform into a raging beast when angered. The Royal Knight specializes in melee fighting. The pride of his country, he is an unstoppable warrior. His defense and offense are both strong. The Forcer is a skill specialist. Instead of fighting with a weapon, he efficiently uses strong magic to attack as many creatures as he can. He has a calm and cool demeanor, but can become enraged when he identifies a threat as a forcer of belief. The Vampire Hunter rises at night in darkness. He uses a crossbow and a targe for defense, and attacks foes with a blade and broadsword. He is honorable and has the finest affinity for humanity. The Vendak is the last guardian of the broken land, a folkloristic character who has lost his sanity. Unlike the others, he stalks

Completionists and those that enjoy how easy it is to destroy other players as a whole will want to play the [Goblin]: Stats. These are probably the most balanced characters, offering all the great stat bonuses on Gear when compared to monster statues and stones. (Minions can be good as well; that's the number you can choose from.) For those that don't mind a challenge, there are a few unique items that have higher stat bonuses for a corresponding cost.

Goblin Stat Bonuses:
