Turn radio on or off.. You wont need Radio code if you are having a problem with the same radio code, that one is the most common. You will always need to open. Once inside, unplug the car stereo. Most times, people think that it is very easy to unlock your radio, But, sometimes it is not. You may be surprised to know that many security-conscious manufacturers provide a variety of security codes to their customers so that they can make sure your vehicle is safe, and your valuables are secured. For instance, the Volkswagen Beetle uses a 4-digit security code to protect your car security. The code can be found by popping open the door lock, hitting the lock button and entering your four-digit pin. Next, enter the code into your radio using the radio scanner tool and see if it works. If the code is not the exact one, you need to use the radio device using this tool to generate a new code, and input the new code. If it is still the same code, you will need to contact the manufacturer or the dealer for assistance. Some vehicles also require you to input your car VIN no or a unique identification number in order to operate the radio. In this case, if you are unable to find your security code, you can unlock your car with your VIN number instead. There are different types of chrysler serial numbers, or as called sometimes the security code. These are located on the top or side of the car stereo box or printed on the label. As the example shows, this is the information needed to generate the correct car radio unlocking code for you. An example of this would be TQ1AA2959A7235, Please see the images

Enter the code you just found Leave the radio to charge at this point. The display should be blank with message "*Please consult an authorised dealer for the code presented" For most vehicles, the code should be set back to your old initial codes once the radio has been returned to a dealer. You can do this by disconnecting your battery if the radio is off. Remove the antenna connector, check battery is disconnected, run the radio power button to see the radio screen. Now you can just reset the radio. Your radio should now be resettable. Another method you can use is to switch off the radio and a you have to first remove the 2 keys from the radio top left and right corners of the radio, When the radio is switched on, press and hold the centre button on the radio for 10 secondsThe radio will then be relocked so you can generate a new one. This process must be performed once per car. The code will be in decimal format e.g. 0211 which is the code for the Chrysler radio.
