Kawasaki disease with angiographic aneurysms. A 23-month-old boy presented with fever for 3 weeks and was diagnosed as having acute phase of Kawasaki disease. Because of persistent fever, high grade fever, and poor response to intravenous immunoglobulin (IVIG) therapy, chest radiography showed pleural effusion and the diagnosis of acute respiratory distress syndrome was made. The patient was treated with a high dose IVIG (2 g/kg) and methylprednisolone pulse therapy. Two days after IVIG therapy, a continuous fever was observed. Angiography showed aneurysms of the distal right common carotid and both proximal internal carotid arteries. The aneurysms disappeared within 2 months after IVIG therapy. There have been few reports on the occurrence of aneurysms in association with Kawasaki disease. In these cases, the aneurysms were developed during the acute phase of Kawasaki disease, followed by spontaneous regression. Although our patient did not receive IVIG therapy, our case suggests the possibility that the aneurysms developed prior to the development of a typical form of acute phase of Kawasaki disease.

Q: disable group lookup on a user level I have an AD group with read permissions for a file. How can i disable group lookup from that folder? [lookup paths] %server%\some folder* How can i set this to something like [lookup paths] %server%\some folder/test Edit: Folder %server%\some folder* is writable (read permission to user) and it is stored on a remote server. In order to be accessed by the local user, i need to disable lookup from the remote server. This is not a problem on the remote server. I can do this by changing the folder permission to * and set it to read only to the AD group or i can set it to read and write to the user. The problem is how to set 04aeff104c
